

Road show. Company management and the investment banker often perform a series of meetings with potential investors and analysts. The road show is a formal presentation by management of the company's financial condition, operations, performance, markets, and products or services. The potential investors and analysts are then permitted to "kick the tires" by asking questions about the company.